About ZiTechnologies

ZiTechnologies started with one idea and grew into a small family of apps, each solving one problem well. Every product is built independently, tested in the real world, and improved from real feedback before it goes wide.

We're not trying to build one giant app that does everything. We'd rather build many small, focused ones — each named after what it does, each simple enough to open and immediately understand. That naming pattern is deliberate: find the “Zi” app, know what it does.

We're a small, hands-on team based in Kampala, Uganda, building for everyday problems first — then refining based on real usage before each product goes wide.
